

Your data protection rights

Your right to be informed that we are using your personal data

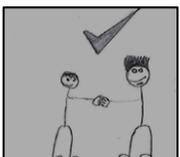

This leaflet explains what we're collecting and why we're using your information. We have also put a "Privacy Notice" on our website to explain this in a little more detail.

Your right of Access: How to get copies of your data

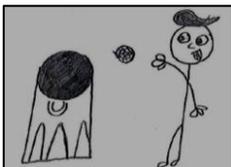

You can ask us for copies of your health information. We have a form which you can use, and we will ask you for some kind of identification documentation so we can be sure that we send the information to the right person.

Your right to have your data corrected

If you think the information we hold about you is not correct, you can ask us to amend it or delete it. We will amend your information if we can; but there may be times when this is not possible. If we can't, we will explain why. Also, sometimes we might need to keep the original information if it is an opinion, or if we need to be able to compare the mistaken information with the more accurate information. We will tell you if we do need to keep both.

Your right to have your data deleted

We keep your information because we need it in order to provide safe health care for you.

There are times when you can ask us to delete the information we hold about you, but it may not be possible for us to do so. If we can't, we'll explain why.

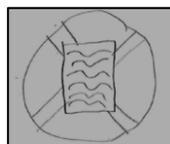

Your right to limit how we use your data

We use your information for your health care but also for a number of other reasons (some of which we have described on the front of this leaflet). We hope that you will be happy for your data to be used this way, but you can ask us to limit the use of your information. If you do, please contact us to discuss this further so we can understand and answer your concerns.

Your right to data portability

This right allows you to ask for transfer of your personal data from one IT system to another. However it only applies when we have asked for your consent to use personal data that you have given us and we then process that information automatically (without human input). This isn't how we normally use your information so this right won't usually apply. The ICO has further guidance that you might find helpful: <https://ico.org.uk/your-data-matters/>

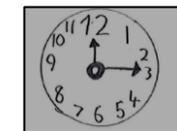

Your right to object to the use of your data

We use your information to provide your health care. If we use it for more than that, we would normally ask your permission first. If you aren't happy with what we are doing with your information you can ask us to stop. We will do as you ask unless there are other reasons why we need to continue; but we will always discuss this with you first.

Your right to raise a concern

We hope that you will be happy with how we manage your information, but if you do have a concern please contact the Trust using the details below.

Time limits to responding to data protection rights requests

We should provide you with a reply within 30 days. We'll let you know if we are likely to take longer, and we will explain any delay to you.
